

Chinese culture

Half of Richmond's population is Chinese. Chinese culture is an important part of Canada's multiculturalism. Chinese people have the responsibility and obligation to inherit, promote and spread Chinese culture.

To this end, I have five proposals:

First, build a new Chinatown.

Second, spread Buddhism and promote studies of Chinese ancient civilization.

Third, set up a Chinese language learning center.

Fourth, develop and carry forward Chinese medicine.

Fifth, better play the role of Chinese community groups in spreading Chinese culture.

New Chinatown

Unlike the traditional Chinatown based on herb stores, souvenirs, restaurants, and vegetable markets, the new Richmond Chinatown will be composed of Buddhist temple, calligraphy and painting, Chinese bookstore, Chinese school, Chinese architecture, Chinese gardens and other elements that truly reflect the spirit of Chinese traditional culture. In addition, some high-tech companies and chambers of commerce will settle in Chinatown as well, a new Chinese image will be established. Herb stores, souvenirs, restaurants, and food markets are not absolutely excluded, it only means Chinatown need new image.

Promote traditional Chinese culture

Invite famous Buddhist masters to teach in Canada, promote the education of filial piety, and spread the spirit of Chinese culture.

Chinese study center

If the Chinese second generation does not speak Chinese, then they will not be able to communicate in Chinese, and they will not be able to read the real Chinese classics. Then the second generation will lose their identity.

As a city with many Chinese second-generation population, Richmond needs a government-supported Chinese learning center to help more Chinese children learn about their culture, language and history.

Chinese medicine

Give full play to the role of Chinese medicine in helping people to restore health, establish the position of Chinese medicine in the Canadian medical system, let more non-Chinese understand Chinese medicine, hold more seminars on Chinese medicine, and spread basic knowledge of Chinese medicine , especially common sense in healthy eating.

Chinese group and association

There are many uncivilized phenomena in the Chinese community. These phenomena are not associated with the spirit of Chinese culture, but it may lead other ethnic groups to misinterpret Chinese culture.

There are splendid treasures in Chinese culture. Chinese need to excavate and carry forward these treasures, Chinese people should be the model of civilization. But nowadays that most of the casino customers are Chinese, and this phenomenon should be changed.

Chinese groups and association have the role of bridges. While further strengthening the artistic and commercial functions, it is necessary to add more functions of culture and education, to realize the transformation from the performance of form of traditional culture to the practice of the spirit of traditional culture, and to play a role in establishing a new image of Chinese. In various educational activities, the Chinese community groups and associations can provide audiences, act as leaders, make Richmond a cultural city, a model of integration between China and the West, and finally revive Chinese spirit, contribute to Canada's multiculturalism.
